*Last year's toy drive was exceptional. In an effort again this year to increase toy donations for those less fortunate, we will begin accepting new, unwrapped toys at the Museum on Tuesdays & Thursdays (9:00 am to Noon) between now and November 10th. For those of you that would like to support the event, but will be unable to attend in person or unable to do the shopping, we will also accept donations....and we'll do the shopping for you (whether you are attending or not). MRC will also be supporting the toy drive by collecting toys at the site to donate. Admission cost will be $10.00 per person for lunch and/or bring a new, unwrapped toy(s). ## Alumni Scholarship History Now added to the Alumni Web Page

The compilation of the history of scholarships awarded from 1993 to 2024 is now available on the web site to look back at the number of scholarships presented to support education of the Alumni families and MRC employees that applied for a scholarship.

Hope you enjoy the lookback of these recipients.

SCRAPBOOKING/CRAFTING EVENT ON NOVEMBER 9th

Unfortunately, due to the late date which we were able to get scheduled at the Clubhouse we did not get enough folks signed up to hold this event this year. We will plan a spring event and try again. For those folks that have sent in your registration fees, your checks or payments will be refunded.

Museum Gets a Facelift

We replaced the missing and tattered awnings Museum to give the building a great new look.

The remodeling work continues on the Museum Annex to get the renovation completed to allow us to use the Annex for educational presentations and add displays from the over-crowded Museum.

The Martinez Historic Home Tour - October 5th 2024

“The MRC Alumni Museum is behind the Refinery Clubhouse parking lot. It depicts the history of oil refining in Martinez -- beginning with the construction of the Refinery in 1915. The Museum is staffed with docents who are retired Shell employees.” (from the Home Tour Article). The Museum was open for the Home Tour visitors. We had 20 - 25 folks that stopped by to see the Museum and check out the displays and old photographs. There were also some vintage cars on the tour route and in the Museum parking lot for folks to enjoy.

Requesting submittal of stories for Alumni Scholarship Recipients for Successes/Journeys and Alumni Stories of Hobbies/Travel Adventures/Volunteering in Retirement

Please submit your stories/photos about scholarship recipients or retirement adventures to mrcmtzalumni22@gmail.com.

We would love to share these stories from Alumni scholarship sponsors of their children, grandchildren or greatgrandchildren that received a scholarship from the MRC Alumni/EAA or MRC and where their journeys have taken them.

Also would love to hear what Alumni retirees are doing in their spare time. Share your hobbies, volunteer efforts or great travel adventures.

DONATE USED EYEGLASSES and HEARING AIDS

The Alumni will collect used eyeglasses and hearing aids for The Lions Club at events and at the Museum. The collection box is available on Tuesdays and Thursday mornings from 9:00 am to noon at the Museum. Through your kindness we can help to offer the gift of sight or sound to those in need. Marj Leeds will pick up the donated items for The Lions Club.

HUMOR CORNER

Don Sanders and the Martinez Community Garden

A big thank you to Don and several other volunteers for their work this summer to plant, weed and harvest the produce in the community garden. Thanks also to Bob and Bambi Barker's generosity allowing the use of their property for the community garden.

As of July 27, the garden had produced about 600 pounds of tomatoes, various types of squash, grapes, and peppers. The yield for the season should be around 1,200 pounds. The produce harvested from the garden is all donated to Loaves and Fishes.

Thanks to Jon Marangoni for the photos of the garden.

Scholarship Lookback by Joshua Chen (son of Andy Chen) Alumni scholarship recipient in 2015

I have wanted to pursue a career in medicine since being introduced to rare disease patients and families as a high school volunteer at Katie's Clinic for Rett Syndrome. When I became a student at UC Berkeley, I chose to study chemical engineering to better understand how chemistry is applied in biological systems. I was especially fascinated by enzyme reaction kinetics and mechanisms, factors key to catalytic function in all biological reactors whether enclosed by cell membranes or stainless steel. Every semester, I noticed more parallels between the engineering problem solving tools I was developing and the medical evaluations and decision making I had observed in clinic. Each overlap made me increasingly excited to explore the possibilities my engineering skillset could bring to the practice of medicine.

After graduating, I worked as a scribe in UCSF's Male Reproductive Health specialty and saw first hand how medical innovation had redefined the possibilities for patients struggling with male factor infertility. IVF/ICSI gave patients with even one sperm the chance to have a child, while sperm cryopreservation allowed patients to travel back in time to a previous version of themselves, expanding the options for recently diagnosed cancer patients or gender dysphoria patients whose treatments could impact fertility. I was amazed by how these science fiction-like treatments could help our patients whose dreams of parenthood were fading. In the clinic's annual deluge of holiday cards from longing duos turned beaming trios, I saw the real-world results of medical innovation and was further inspired by our ability to deliver success and happiness to the people we served.

Forced out of the clinic during the COVID-19 pandemic, I became determined to leverage my engineering background to impact medicine through biopharmaceutical drug development. First, I worked in new drug discovery at Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory exploring the cutting edge of targeted oncological therapeutic-diagnostic radionuclide treatments. Drawn to the rapidly advancing field of gene therapy as mRNA vaccines gained traction, I joined Nutcracker Therapeutics, an mRNA therapeutics startup, as a bioprocess engineer. Most recently, I worked as a senior engineer at Senti Biosciences, a CAR-NK cell therapy company. At each stop in my journey, I have gained and developed research skills, engineering tools, and a deeper understanding of the pharmaceutical pipeline. While I will leverage these experiences to drive therapeutic development in the future, each has further confirmed my conviction to return to the clinic as a physician. Working elsewhere, I am able to fully appreciate how much I miss the clinic – nothing compares to providing innovative solutions, guidance, and compassionate support at the bedside to patients in need.

I can already see the impact I hope to have on my future patients during my weekend volunteer shifts at the local pediatric office where I was once a patient. Working with these young patients, I am reminded of the transformative power of medical innovation – whether it be state-of-art technology to help patients communicate, a precision treatment to help them conceive, or a routine vaccination to keep them healthy. Having just started as a medical student at the University of Michigan Medical School, I am excited to pursue a career as a physician-scientist to build meaningful connections with my patients, develop treatments to meet unmet needs, and, most importantly, bring hope to future patients and families.

RUN THE DISHWASHER TWICE

When I was at one of my lowest (mental) points in life, I couldn't get out of bed some days. I had no energy or motivation and was barely getting by.

I had therapy once per week, and on this particular week, I didn't have much to 'bring' to the session. He asked how my week was and I really had nothing to say.

"What are you struggling with?" he asked.

I gestured around me and said "I dunno man. Life."

Not satisfied with my answer, he said "No, what exactly are you worried about right now? What feels overwhelming? When you go home after this session, what issue will be staring at you?"

I knew the answer, but it was so ridiculous that I didn't want to say it. I wanted to have something more substantial. Something more profound. But I didn't. So I told him,

"Honestly? The dishes. It's stupid, I know, but the more I look at them the more I CAN'T do them because I'll have to scrub them before I put them in the dishwasher, because the dishwasher sucks, and I just can't stand and scrub the dishes."

I felt like an idiot even saying it. What kind of grown woman is undone by a stack of dishes? There are people out there with actual problems, and I'm whining to my therapist about dishes? But my therapist nodded in understanding and then said:

"RUN THE DISHWASHER TWICE."

I began to tell him that you're not supposed to, but he stopped me.

"Why the hell aren't you supposed to? If you don't want to scrub the dishes and your dishwasher sucks, run it twice. Run it three times, who cares? Rules do not exist, so stop giving yourself rules."

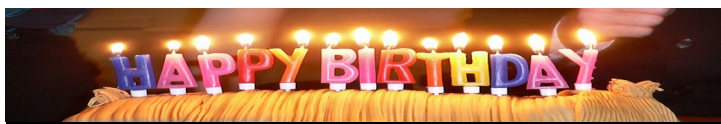

It blew my mind in a way that I don't think I can properly express.

That day, I went home and tossed my smelly dishes haphazardly into the dishwasher and ran it three times. I felt like I had conquered a dragon. The next day, I took a shower lying down. A few days later, I folded my laundry and put them wherever they fit. There were no longer arbitrary rules I had to follow, and it gave me the freedom to make accomplishments again.

Now that I'm in a healthier place, I rinse off my dishes and put them in the dishwasher properly. I shower standing up. I sort my laundry. But at a time when living was a struggle instead of a blessing, I learned an incredibly important lesson:

THERE ARE NO RULES. RUN THE DISHWASHER TWICE!
